This year has proved to be a busy and productive time for PHS. In April, we celebrated our 45th Anniversary with a gala and Discovery Showcase of PHS clinical and research work. It was a great opportunity to pause and reflect on the many years that PHS has been in existence and to celebrate its many accomplishments.

But we have not rested; we are continuing to address the challenges of today and tomorrow. We recruited new faculty and established two more philanthropically funded fellowships. We are growing to meet the demands of our clinical care, research, education and public policy missions.

We still have work to do. Prejudice, stigma, discrimination, and violence have no place in a sexually healthy society. We have witnessed battles over insurance coverage for transgender persons, restrictions on what bathrooms people can use, debates about reproductive rights and access to reproductive health care, renewed awareness of sexual assault and violence, rising sexually transmitted infection rates, and archaic policies regarding civil commitment for sexual offenders. These issues impact the lives of the people that we see clinically, and challenge us to conduct further research to provide education in order to create a more enlightened society. The faculty and staff of PHS take on many of these issues and are participating in these public policy debates. We witness gains and progress but are painfully aware of the many issues that still are unresolved.

As always, I appreciate the efforts of our amazing faculty and staff. And without the support of the University, the community, and our many donors to the Program, we couldn’t have accomplished all that we have in the past 45 years. With your continued support, we can truly revolutionize the sexual climate of this country.

Peace,

Compulsive Sexual Behavior and HIV Risk
Michael Miner, PhD, is the principal investigator on a grant from the National Institutes of Mental Health (NIMH) to study sexual compulsivity. The aim of this grant is to gather the empirical data needed to clarify the characteristics of sexual compulsivity and how it leads to increased levels of HIV sexual risk behavior. This is the first investigation to explore underlying factors drawn from the various conceptualizations of sexual compulsivity and will advance the understanding of this theoretical construct.

SOTIPS Implementation Evaluation Project
The aim of this project is to conduct a rigorous analysis of the utility of a newly developed, dynamic risk factor assessment for sexual offenders, the Sex Offender Treatment Intervention and Progress Scale (SOTIPS). Michael Miner, PhD, is the principal investigator of this study funded by the Department of Justice National Institute of Justice.

BIMOR: Bisexual Individuals in Mixed Orientation Relationships
“Mixed orientation relationships” happen when the sexual orientations of people in a relationship do not match. Because we know very little about how this dynamic can impact both individual and overall relational health, the aim of this project is to gather baseline data on bisexual individuals’ relationship health, sexual functioning, minority stress experiences, and general psychological well-being. Jennifer A. Ven-cill, PhD is the principal investigator of this study funded by the American Institute of Bisexuality.

Group Differences and Minority Stress in a Clinical Transgender Population
Katie Spencer, PhD, is the principal investigator on a grant from the U of M Office of the Vice President with the goal of updating measures in transgender health care. With intake data collected from clients, PHS adopted a protocol that is part of the European Network Investigation for Gender Incongruence (ENIGI). This data will allow researchers to identify the psychological sequelae that result from stigma and minority stress as well as allows cross cultural comparisons with European transgender populations.
We educate postdoctoral psychologists, medical students, medical residents, and researchers in specialized sexual health care and sexual science. With our community partners, we work to improve sexual health resources and education.

We graduated postdoctoral fellows Janet Brito, PhD, Jennifer Vencill, PhD, and Rachel Becker-Warner, PsyD, in 2016. Abby Girard, PsyD, Leonardo Candelario Pérez, PhD, and Nic Rider, PhD, joined fellows Tera Jansen, PsyD, and Tracy Carlson, PhD.

We welcomed third-year medical student Christina Warner, interning under the supervision of Michael Ross, MD, PhD, MPH. Faculty worked with community partners, primarily in the areas of LGBT health and sexuality and aging.
We make profound and lasting changes in the lives of individuals, couples, and families of all backgrounds and ages by providing the best available clinical care by highly skilled clinicians.

We continue to explore ways in which our clinical care can be synchronized with clinical research. The research and clinical faculty are collaborating to develop a more focused clinical research agenda in order to test our innovative models of care.

We have been working on developing tests and questionnaires that can be answered electronically and made more accessible for clinical care as well as to use clinical data for research.
Our faculty work to translate science-based information into science-based public policy.

On April 7, 2016, the Program in Human Sexuality hosted a Discovery Showcase as an interactive way to share faculty’s clinical and research work with the public. Attendees moved around different interactive stations in the areas of compulsive sexual behavior, research, transgender health, relationship and sex therapy, sexual health education, and sexuality and aging.

Guests then attended a large gala event at the Commons Hotel. Over 300 guests enjoyed a plated dinner followed by a keynote address by Colonel (IL) Jennifer N. Pritzker, IL ARNG (Retired).

Friends, supporters, and PHS family dating back to the early 1970’s mingled together sharing stories, photos, and their appreciation for all that PHS has accomplished.
DONOR SPOTLIGHT: JENNIFER PRITZKER

While searching for programs that studied transgender issues, I discovered the Program in Human Sexuality. Our society needs a place that studies all aspects of human sexuality and that provides for both research and applied clinical services.

Sexuality is an experience and condition that all human beings have in common. Too often, certain issues of human sexuality become politicized without the understanding of context or the particular needs of the situation. We need a place that has sufficient resources to be able to provide essential services. In order for politicians, judges and lawyers to design laws about sexuality they need impartial, qualified health care professionals and scientists who have the technical and expertise for them to make intelligent, informed decisions.

PHS does a great deal of positive good. PHS contributes to the health of the community. Many of their programs are funded by private sector support. I like the idea of drawing on a wide range of professional skills. I am a big believer that the public good is best served by voluntary contributions of both monetary and in kind non-cash contributions, as well as hands on services. A democratic community functions best with strong grassroots involvement, from private citizens.

I have met a lot of very interesting, talented, committed and compassionate people through PHS. I particularly enjoy the honor and privilege of serving on the Leadership Council. I have learned a lot in so many different areas. I have also simply had a great time with a lot of nice people sharing the satisfaction of doing something that benefits the community in which we all live.

“Our society needs a place that studies all aspects of human sexuality and that provides for both research and applied clinical services.”
As I pass the torch to incoming Leadership Council Chair Tom Reise, I reflect on my decade of being part of this dynamic, world-impacting and future thinking Council. The Council’s goals have expanded and grown due to the vision and passion of our respective Council members. The Program in Human Sexuality has a very broad horizon of needs and services; this Leadership Council’s job was to target our next horizon and target we did.

The dreams and passion of thousands have fueled this Council, be they our own, those of family or friends or even complete strangers. Our establishment of the first two Endowed Chairs in Human Sexuality and the three philanthropically funded fellowships make expanding the PHS mission possible in Minnesota and around the world. Although PHS is based in Minnesota, PHS and this Council are national and international in its membership, impact and support.

Change is upon us and any time we go through change it brings new heart, new energy, and new vigor for our collective vision. I look forward to further building and expanding on these changes and the Leadership Council’s impact worldwide.
