At the Program in Human Sexuality (PHS) our mission is to advance the sexual health of Minnesota, the nation, and the world through preeminence in research, education, clinical service, and advocacy.

Our vision is to revolutionize the sexual climate by eliminating barriers and advancing healthy sexuality.
This year has been marked by projects funded by our passionate donors. In the spring, we premiered a play based on the experiences of gender variant youth in high school, and now we are sharing the script and educational materials with students, teachers, and school administrators. This fall, researchers started working on an aging, sexuality, and mindfulness pilot project. In December, we gathered a variety of experts for the first Summit on Sexual Health Education in Medical School, which was an opportunity to share expertise and ideas as we work toward our goal of preparing all medical students to be competent sexual health practitioners.

Faculty continued their outstanding work in clinical care, education, research, and public policy. Our clinicians provide excellent therapy to clients who present complex problems. Our youth work has grown this year. Clinicians have had a tremendous impact on patients with gender issues and their families by focusing on youth health in developing our clinical group and individual work, helping to navigate insurance coverage, and building relationships with schools, families, and community groups.

Our wide-range of research projects continues to impact individuals and communities by systematically examining complex sexual problems and issues, leading to better prevention and treatment approaches as well as improved public policy. Through our projects we have uncovered major issues in conducting Internet-based research that threaten the validity of conducting online surveys and studies. Given these finding, we hosted an expert consultation on the topic and now are in the process of writing up the results to help other researchers tread these murky waters.

We continue to make contributions to the promotion of sexual health through advancing sexual science, improving clinical care, training health care professionals, and advocating for a sexually healthy world. It is because of you, our donors, our colleagues, and our advocates that we continue to thrive.

Thank you,

Eli Coleman, PhD

Summit on Sex Ed in Medical School

Youth Theatre Project
All Gender Health Online Using the latest knowledge about Internet research methodologies and the latest technology in e-learning we have developed a cutting-edge, theory-driven sexual health intervention for America’s transgender community. We are currently evaluating the efficacy of this unique online health promotion program in improving comfort with self and identity; supportive relationships with friends, family, and community; sexual and relationship satisfaction; and safer sex behaviors. Walter Bockting, PhD, is the principal investigator, and the study is funded by the National Institutes of Health.

Multi-State Recidivism The aim of this study is to examine the predictive validity of three actuarial risk assessment instruments (the Static-99, Minnesota Sex Offender Screening Tool-Revised, and Matrix 2000) in a large multi-state sample of sexual offenders and to examine how well the Adam Walsh Act classification categories predict sexual offender recidivism compared to these actuarial instruments (states FL, MA, MN, NJ, SC). Michael Miner, PhD, is a co-principal investigator of the study funded by the National Institute of Justice of the US Department of Justice.

Roots of Sexual Abuse This study applies attachment theory to identify the unique and shared risk factors for adolescents perpetrating child sexual abuse, sexual assault, non-contact sex offenses, and those displaying mental health difficulties. Data collection was completed in late 2010 and the team is analyzing data and preparing a number of manuscripts for publication. The team published an important article in the Journal of Sexual Aggression which describes the roles of anti-social behavior and psychopathy traits in the perpetration of child sexual abuse and sexual aggression. Michael Miner, PhD, is the principal investigator, and the study is funded by the National Center for Injury Prevention and Control of the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention.

Compulsive Sexual Behavior and HIV Risk The aim of this study is to gather the empirical data needed to clarify the characteristics of sexual compulsivity and how it leads to increased levels of HIV sexual risk behavior. This is the first investigation to explore underlying factors drawn from the various conceptualizations of sexual compulsivity and will advance the understanding of this theoretical construct. The findings of this study will further a nuanced approach to the development of interventions and allow for targeting the most resource-intensive prevention efforts at those individuals most likely to spread HIV. Michael Miner, PhD, is the principal investigator, and the study is funded by the National Institutes of Mental Health.

Sexuality and Aging This new pilot research project on sexuality, mindfulness, and the body in “individuals of a certain age.” The goal of this project is to gather baseline qualitative and quantitative data on sexual functioning, sexual satisfaction, mindfulness skills, interest in mindfulness, and general quality of life. Sara Mize, PhD, and Alex Iantaffi, PhD, are co-investigators on this project funded by donors.

Somali Women’s Initiative for Sexual Health The aim of this project is to better understand the knowledge, attitudes, and behaviors related to HIV/STD transmission and prevention within the Somali community. This year the research team completed the translation of interviews from Somali into English, analyzed data, and presented their research findings at two national conferences and to the project’s community advisory board. The team is in the process of preparing several for submission to peer-reviewed scientific journals. With the assistance of the University of Minnesota’s Program in Health Disparities Research, researchers will be presenting and distributing the results of their research at a community meeting at the Brian Coyle Center in St. Paul. Bean Robinson, PhD, is the principal investigator. The study was funded by University’s Program in Health Disparities Research, the University’s IDEA Multicultural Research Award, and the UCare Fund.
We educate postdoctoral psychologists, medical students, medical residents, and researchers in specialized sexual health care and sexual science. With our community partners, we work to improve sexual health resources and education.

Eli Coleman, PhD, helped to write Science-Based Sexuality Education: Madrid Consensus Paper – Recommendations of an International Expert Group

Katie Spencer, PhD, continued to work with multiple community organizations to educate about LGBT health care issues and primarily transgender health care. She worked with the Minnesota Trans Youth Support Network on the Community Hormone Access Project, partnering with community advocates and transgender youth to develop community based hormone protocols for transgender care, in hopes to increase access to competent care and hormone provision for transgender youth.

Eli Coleman, PhD, joined an expert consultation at the Minnesota Department of Health division of STD and HIV to estimate the population of men who have sex with men in Minnesota in order to provide better and more targeted STD and HIV prevention.

In collaboration with St. Mary’s University, Brian Zamboni, PhD, is developing an educational intervention that will provide parents with training on how to talk with their children about sex.

“I have gained invaluable experience treating a host of sexual health concerns, and I feel prepared to take on a competitive job market with skills that set me well apart from other applicants.” Krista Nabar, PsyD

We joined Exposed Brick Theatre to create the new play based on the stories, experiences, and perspectives of transgender and gender nonconforming youth. On May 4, 2012, nearly 180 people attended the premiere performances of Trans/formation: Addressing Gender Issues in School at the Pillsbury House Theatre. After the production, the audience enjoyed a lively discussion with the cast, writers, and director about their experience working on the project and the themes of the play.

The aims of the project are to validate transgender and gender nonconforming youth experiences through performance; to educate peers, parents, families, friends, and educators about the experiences of transgender and gender nonconforming youth; and to encourage dialogues around gender issues, advocacy, and ally support for adolescents. The play script and educational materials will be made available for high school groups to download and perform at their schools.

This project was made possible through a generous donation from Stacey Mills and Sam Heins.
In December, we gathered key medical school educators and sexual health experts from the United States and Canada to discuss the challenges and opportunities for ensuring physicians are properly trained to address the sexual health needs of their patients. Participants heard presentations on the current state sexual health, sexual health education, and sexual health curricula and training programs from public health experts, educators, students, and researchers. Work groups discussed topics of curriculum placement, evaluation, faculty development, interprofessional education and training for integrated care, and cooperative strategies and partnerships.

A meeting report will be prepared and shared with interested parties and key stakeholders. The Summit on Medical School Education in Sexual Health was made possible through funds from the Joycelyn Elders Chair in Sexual Health Education and the University of Minnesota Medical School through support from the Herz Foundation and Office of Minority Affairs and Diversity.

“Leadership is like a relay race. We are challenged as leaders in sexual health and sexual health education to make sure that we pass the baton successfully to all future educators and health professionals.” David Satcher, MD, PhD

Bean Robinson, PhD, has been named the clinical services director. This is a new position designed to help us advance our vision for compassionate, innovative, and evidence-based care. Rosemary Munns, PsyD, has been named the new coordinator for the Sexual Offender Treatment Program, and Katie Spencer, PhD, has been named the new coordinator for Transgender Health Services. In May, the clinic transitioned to electronic medical records using the EPIC system.

Our Child and Adolescent Services continue to grow. Families and patients with gender issues have expressed their appreciation for efforts to promote the health and well-being of the youth that we serve, including developing our clinical group and individual work, helping to navigate insurance coverage for transgender care, as well as building relationships with schools, families, and community groups.

Transgender Health Services is working to bring the program in line with current best practices in transgender care, increase operational transparency, and deepen community collaborations.

This year we offered a new women’s sexual health group. It is the first body-oriented and mindfulness group affectionately named “DaBOM!” In the group, Sara Mize, PhD, uses many Sensorimotor and InterPlay techniques to facilitate sexual healing and growth.

Along with the Pan American Health Organization and the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, we co-sponsored an International AIDS Conference session on sexual health and evidence-based sexual health education. Eli Coleman, PhD, presented, “Towards a Broader Vision of Sexual Health in the New Millennium.”

Jamie Feldman, MD, PhD, worked with Lambda Legal on the case of Esquivel v. Oregon that resulted in the State of Oregon changing their employee health care policy to cover transgender individuals for transition-related health care.

Eli Coleman, PhD, continued to work with the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention to revitalize a national strategy to advance sexual health.

Eli Coleman, PhD, and Walter Bockting, PhD, continued to work on finalizing a Blueprint for the Provision of Comprehensive Care to Transgender and Transsexual Persons and Their Communities in Latin America and the Caribbean for the Pan American Health Organization and the International Association for Physicians in AIDS Care.

Eli Coleman, PhD, served on the American Psychiatric Association Task Force on the Treatment of Gender Identity Disorder. Their report was published in the Archives of Sexual Behavior.

Eli Coleman, PhD, served as an advisor to the World Health Organization on the International Classification of Diseases - Towards a revision of ICD 11.

Katie Spencer, PhD, worked on the issue of transgender health care benefits by advocating with medical policy directors.

Walter Bockting, PhD, was appointed to the American Psychological Association Task Force on Guidelines for Psychological Practice with Transgender and Gender Non-Conforming Clients.

Our Vision

Our vision is to revolutionize the sexual climate by eliminating barriers and advancing healthy sexuality.

Ground-breaking discovery through research
- Developing innovative treatments for sexual health concerns
- Understanding roles of culture, stigma, and resilience in human sexuality
- Expanding understanding of sexual behavior and relationships
- Understanding healthy sexual identity and development

Science-based advocacy and public policy
- Educating policy makers and opinion leaders
- Combating stigma and promoting sexual rights
- Building liaison with international organizations
- Advocating for special populations

Compassionate, innovative, evidence-based care
- Introducing new best practices and continuous quality improvement for treatment protocols
- Improving patient access to clinical care
- Expanding new areas of clinical service
- Providing comprehensive and multi-disciplinary care teams

Education and community partners
- Educating and training of medical and other professionals
- Capacity building for community-based organizations
- Training future sexuality researchers and clinicians
- Educating the public to become more sexually aware and knowledgeable

Development Efforts

With our strategic goals clearly articulated we have been able to pair faculty projects with the interests and passions of our donors. In 2012 donors had a significant impact on our work, enabling faculty to create the transgender youth theatre project and begin new research on aging, sexuality, and mindfulness.

In a few years, once all donations to the Joycelyn Elders Chair in Sexual Health Education have been received, a faculty member will be hired to hold the endowed chair position and will focus his/her efforts on creating comprehensive life-long sexual education curricula, increasing the number of health care providers and health educators trained in sexual health, and expanding scientific research in sexuality education. The Elders Chair is already having an impact by helping to fund the Summit on Medical School Education in Sexual Health (see page 8).

Funds from the Chair in Sexual Health continue to provide critical support for the director and program infrastructure, while funding new endeavors which include a faculty retreat to develop a strategic vision for our postdoctoral fellowship program.

The Elders Chair, the Chair in Sexual Health, and the John W. Money Endowed Lecture Fund account for $6.1 million in commitments toward our goal to raise $10 million in endowments. Endowments provide long-term sustainability and allow PHS to grow interdisciplinary research and education, to improve clinical care, to support faculty, and to create a synergy of activities which will have a lasting impact on generations to come. As PHS transforms into a more comprehensive, higher capacity, and internationally renowned program focused on improving sexual health, we will become a fertile home for advancing sexual health in innovative, science-based, and sex-positive ways. This commitment uniquely positions us to become the world’s preeminent center for sexual health.

Leadership Councils

We are extremely fortunate to work with two dedicated volunteer advisory groups, our national Leadership Council and our local Minnesota Leadership Council. These volunteers devote their time and talent to help us advance our strategic mission.

Leadership Council’s mission is to generate interest in and financial support for programs and research, allowing PHS to fulfill its mission and vision for the future by creating long-term sustainability (established 2007).

Minnesota Leadership Council’s mission is to engage a broad spectrum of Minnesotans in a conversation about PHS’s future and assist PHS in maintaining its long-term sustainability by generating financial support in Minnesota to advance its mission and vision (established 2012).
